FOURTH OF JULY EVENTS PLANNED

Citizens Independence Day Committees Ask Funds for Event.

With patriotic enthusiasm aroused in Washington as the result of the preparedness parade on Flag Day, the citizens' Independence Day committee is looking forward to the coming celebration on July 4 with more than ordinary enthusiasm.

It has been particularly gratifying to District Commissioner Oliver P. Newman that in the midst of the preparations for the preparedness parade, the Fourth of July celebration was not forgotten. Treasurer Edmund S. Wolfe is making a compendium of subscriptions to the Fourth of July fund, which will be announced tomorrow. Mr. Wolfe is preparing for an energetic campaign to raise funds so that the committee on fireworks, to which the greater part of the Fourth of July fund is allotted, may proceed with the closing of a contract.

Confident that the Washington public will meet the needs of the situation, Chairman E. C. Graham has already invited programs from the largest fireworks companies in the United States, setting forth a maximum figure which the committee desires to obtain. Chairman Graham has named the following committee to assist him and has invited his co-workers to meet with him tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the rooms of the Retail Merchants' Association in the Star Building: F. A. Fenning, Charles F. Crane, George H. Markward and Samuel J. Prescott.

Gen. William E. Harvey, commanding the District of Columbia National Guard, has arranged for the firing of the national salute at noon Independence Day. This will be done by four guns of the District National Guard battery, stationed in four separate sections of Washington. The salute of forty-eight guns will be fired simultaneously.

Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the tournament that will be held in the afternoon at the Brightwood Reservoir, has made progress in the arrangement of his program. It will not only include races and horse events but particularly thrilling exhibits by members of the District National Guard.

FINE SUMMER SPORT IN HERALD'S PUZZLE

Prize Winner to Receive Vacation Money Without Loss of Time—Former Puzzle Winners Barred.

For indoor summer sport nothing could be more interesting than the inviting new puzzle which The Washington Herald presents today on page five of this section. Containing, as it does, a number of puzzles, it is a most interesting and profitable way of passing the time. The new puzzle consists of a jumble of letters, which, properly put together, spell the phrase, "The United States," a number of times, the problem being to ascertain just how many times the phrase can be formed.

Those who submit the best solutions will be awarded the prizes, regardless of whether they have formed the words the maximum number of possible times or not.

Those who won in the last puzzle contest conducted by The Herald are barred from competing, so that those who did not win or those who were not in the contest at all may have a clear field, apart from those who carried off the laurels before.

It will also be noted that the contest is not long drawn out, which insures the distribution of prizes in time for vacation uses. The contest is framed with this purpose especially in mind, a fact that undoubtedly will be appreciated by those who compete.

The Washington Herald's new puzzle is a matter of calculation and not guess work. It is of such a character that all having a reasonable amount of intelligence may work upon it with the assurance that they will have an equal chance to win with any others who may attempt to solve it. It is a fine chance to add to your summer possibilities, so do not let the next two or three weeks slip by without putting in at least one solution.

It is but a single instance of the numerous sacrifices being made on all hands to aid the Summer Outings Committee in conducting its camp for poor babies and children and their mothers. One little girl has shortened her usual summer vacation by a week so she may contribute toward the fund.

This standard was proposed by the engineers of the commission, after a two-month investigation. It was found that the railways are now practically complying with the proposed standard, with certain exceptions, according to the engineering officials. The exceptions are the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the Eleventh street line, and Fourteenth street line.

AMERICANS NEED NOT FEAR TO VISIT CANADA
New York, June 17.—Apprehension on the part of many Americans that if they go to Canada they might be conscripted into the army in indicated in numerous inquiries to the government. It is pointed out that there is no conscription in Canada. Furthermore, the government authorizes the statement that no measures are taken for recruiting the forces either have been or will be applied to any persons not ordinarily resident in the Dominion nor is it the intention to ask for volunteers except from among British subjects resident in Canada.

The military service act under which conscription is applied in Great Britain affects only persons ordinarily resident there. Americans and British subjects who reside in the States and who wish to go to Canada will find no more trouble on the border than they have experienced in the past. The immigration authorities suggest, however, that naturalized Americans, whose country of origin is at war with the British empire, should bring along their naturalization certificates.
